When Opponents Agree

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER AND his ablest critic, Mr. Adlai Stevenson, are opposed in terms of party politics. In terms of foreign policy they are curiously united. After a quiet but profound shift in thinking, the President finds himself agreeing on fundamentals with the nation's leading Democrat. Essentially both are now advocating the same kind of foreign policy.

Mr. Stevenson has been saying for some time that the whole nature of the world's power struggle has changed with a change in Russian tactics and that the American approach to foreign nations is obsolete.

Mr. Eisenbouen's Eisenhower's latest speeches confirm that verdict. He says, in a significant passage, that "a policy that was good six months ago is not necessarily now of any validity.'

Of course the two statesmen disagree on the cause of this fundamental change. Mr. Stevenson attacks the government for "the sterility of the last three years—a sterility that even the exuberance of John Foster Dulles' slogans cannot disguise." Mr. Eisenhower thinks those years have greatly increased the nation's strength but adds that changed both Russian tactics and his own calculations.

The partisan aspects of this debate are purely the business of the American voters. What concerns the world is that both leaders are now urging their parties to adopt nev policies in a changed situation. And those policies, under different party labels, are basically the same.

Mr. Eisenhower calls for an expanded, long-term program of aid to foreign nations; a reduction of American trade barriers to enable foreign nations, especially Japan, to sell in the American market; and expanded trade between the West and the Communist countries.

Mr. Stevenson proposes an expansion in foreign aid, suggests that it might be supervised by the United Nations and would invite Russian co-operation in its administration. He would de-emphasize the existing American military approach to international problems and emphasize the economic approach (as Mr. Dulles has been urging in the case of NATO.) Finally, Mr. Stevenson would cancel further H-bomb tests.

Mr. Eisenhower refuses to cancel these tests but it is on that point only that he seems to disagree with Mr. Stevenson.

Clearly, as Mr. Joseph Harsch reports from Washington to The Christian Science Monitor, the real issue joined not between the leading presidential candidates but between the policy revisionists and the policy servatives in both parties. Eisenhower is quite as much a revisionist as is Mr. Stevenson.

The immediate problem of Mr. Stevenson is to secure the Democratic nomination and, if he succeeds, to win the election—a highly doubtful undertaking against a popular President.

Mr. Eisenhower's problem (since he will be nominated automatically and has every hope of winning the election) is to convert the conservative wing of his party to his change

Both party leaders as Mr. Harsch observes, "join issue with the neo-iso-lationists who would raise tariffs, cut out foreign aid and do business only with allies who refuse to trade with the old enemy. Both are in rebellion against postures, attitudes and policies engendered by Joseph Stalin in a world which has at last reached unanimity on the proposition that he was a bad thing.'

Mr. Stevenson should have little difficulty in converting the Democratic party to his views on foreign even if he is not nominated, since the party is generally in agreement with him.

Mr. Eisenhower confronts again in the present election his original problem-a Republican Party split between its progressive and conservative wings. But the President is so powerful in his own right, and so essential to his party, that he can undoubtedly make his policy vail if he chooses to fight for it. His recent speeches suggest that he is

A Unified Police Force

MUNICIPAL LEADERS HAVE looked with little warmth on Victoria's suggestion for a unified police force. They have their doubts and misgivings.

Furthermore, if Victoria spokesmen are correct, the adjacent districts are doing very well for themselves under the present system. City aldermen maintain that Victoria is carrying most of the burden for the whole community.

There are strong arguments for and against a metropolitan force. Its development seems inevitable. Police work is not a process which can be checked by municipal boundaries if it is to be effective.

Two main obstacles stand in the way of unification. One is the fear of adjoining municipalities that a combined force, with each entity paying its fair share, would cost them more. The other is an under-standable, though not necessarily justified, pride in local forces.

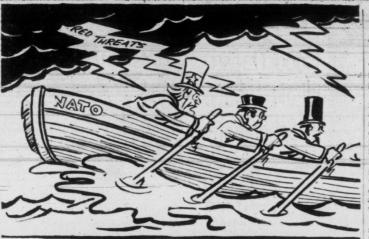

Victoria, oddly enough, has used the cost element as a major argu-The city council, in debate, emphasized the fact that policing the area within its jurisdiction is becoming too expensive. That is a peculiar approach to persuade its economy-conscious neighbors that they should assume more of the load. Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich has suggested a reasonable approach to the question. He advocates roundtable discussion. In such a discussion several illuminating facts could be presented.

For instance the city might very ell draw attention to the wage scale issue so strikingly revealed in the districts adjoining Vancouver. In these fringe localities police commissions find it necessary to pay wages comparable to those of the Vancouver force because their men need only apply for Vancouver jobs and bus to work in that city. The same could apply here.

It should also be understood that police work in he city is of direct concern to those residents of Esquimalt, Saanich and Oak Bay who have businesses in the downtown area or who are served by the city force whenever they come into town as they all do.

It is highly questionable whether unification would reduce costs. But it is obvious that if the whole community pays jointly for police service the service itself should be improved by employment of specialists and costly equipment which the individual municipalities cannot afford.

The Needs of NATO

THE spring meeting in Paris of the NATO powers was preceded by considerable headshaking about the pros-pects of the alliance. The Iceland Par-liament would like the American troops to go home. The French have moved large parts of their army from the central front in Germany to North Africa. The Ger-mans are putting off a conscription law cause military service is unpopular and be-cause business is booming. Just below the of ficial surface in Ger-many there is a strong disposition to treat the

As Germany and France are the two big countries most vulnerable to the Red Army, the way they are behaving has made many ask themselves whether NATO is disintegrating. I should like to argue that what is disintegrating is not the foundation of NATO but a superstructure that is obsolescent.

What are the foundations of NATO? They consist, to speak plainly, of a North American guarantee to go to war if there is a Soviet military aggression across the frontiers of the members of the NATO alliance.

The fundamental idea is that if the United States, assisted by its NATO allies, has adequate military forces in being, the commitment to act at once will deter aggression.

Original Conception

This was the original conception of the North Atlantic alliance, and there is not the slightest reason for thinking that this fundamental guarantee is any firm today than it ever was before. There is no doubt at all that the United States would go immediately to war if an agoverall purpose of full co-operation, gressive attack against the NATO terri

Upon this fundamental guarantee there has been erected a superstructure, not originally contemplated when the alliance was formed, consisting of an international army.

The superstructure was added on the assumption that if the Soviet Union decided for a war of aggression, it would use the Red Army to invade and conquer Western Germany, the Low Countries, Scandinavia and France. This assumption was adopted before the Soviet Union had developed serious nuclear power of its own. It was adopted in the days when the main military instrument of the Soviet Union was its in-

On this assumption, which was most to build up a large European army which was to include strong West German

The troubles of NATO have been almost wholly concerned with this army superstructure. Insofar as there are signs of disintegration in NATO, it is a disintegration of the plans for this super-structure. Neither the French nor the Germans, the nations presumably most terested in the NATO army, seem to be taking it very seriously.

It is often said that their lack of interest is due to the wiles and guiles of the new softer Soviet tactics. is, I think, a superficial explanation

The real explanation is that there are few people left in France and in West Germany, or indeed anywhere, who think that Third World War could take the form of an attempt to invade Western

Afraid of War

It is not that the Western nations have been fulled into thinking that there is no danger of war. They are very much afraid of war. But they are afraid of a different kind of war. They do not think that the war they are afraid of will be begun or will be decided on the ground in the middle of Europe

This view is not confined to the masses of the people, who, it is often supposed, are beguiled by the new Soviet p. opaganda. The view is general, though not universal, that invasion by the Red Army is not the real military problem -given the abundance of nuclear wea-pons on both sides and the nuclear stale-

Insofar as there is a lack of interest NATO, it comes from the top down and derives from the feeling that the strategical planning in respect to the ground forces may be out of date.

If this is correct, then what NATO needs first of all is a reappraisal of its strategical concepts. Such a reappraisal will not impair, indeed it would reinforce, the fundamental guarantee which is the heart of the matter.

'More Cobwebs'

In your Saturday issue of this date "Silenus" expresses his opinion regard-ing capital punishment and a Christian

I doubt if the great majority of his fellow citizens would at all times have a real sense of peaceful security if, in stead of capital punishment, the convict ed criminal was sentenced to the safe keeping of Silenus and his fellow civil-ized Christians.

Silenus says ". . . the taking of life wrong . . . the death penalty is ong . . . when we abolish hanging, the wrong ... when we abolish hanging, we one last relic of our primitive past, we may truly call ourselves a civilized, as well as a Christian people."

In this province of B.C. there is a small section of the population that takes its Christian religion so very, very seri-ously that it has caused some of them to tangle with a number of our very civilized laws and in consequence acts of considerable criminal violence have occurred occasionally during the past 30

Perhaps both our civilization and our Christianity owe a very great deal to those laws and severe penalties of our

"primitive" past.
Whether or not we are "a civilized as well as a Christian people," it is often fore difficult for the prosecution to win "guilty" verdict, if the legal penalty for the crime is very severe.

The abolition of capital punishment might therefore often cause a jury to do its proper duty, where otherwise, jurymen of the Silenus persuasion would hesitate or refuse to agree to a "guilty" verdibit.

Let us provide the penalties best suited to protect the procedures, actions and lives of all law enforcement personnel. They are responsible for the safety of property and lives of each and all of us. Protect them first, last and all the time in every way possible. And avoid all other considerations when dealing with capital punishment.

INTERESTED.

Bible and Capital Punishment

I greatly enjoy the breezy articles of "Silenus" on jurisprudence, but his "More Cobwebs" is in sharp conflict with the Divine Law as laid down by the 2124 W. 39th St., Vancouver is. It transcends that of any parliament or court of human law. Blackstone not only agrees with this, but goes so far as to say that no law contrary thereto's of any validity—in clear-cut contrast to the great bulk of human legislation. This certainly includes capital punishment, the theme of his discourse on May 5,

The Divine Law for murder demands capital punishment, vide Gen. 9:6 and Ex. 21:12. And Eccl. 8:11 calls for speedy execution of sentence to put the fear of God into the hearts of criminals. This law is meticulously set forth in Numbers 35:16-21 and 32. Verses 22-29 legislate for manslaughter. Deut, 17:6 demands sufficient evidence in a crime, and chapter 21:1-9 requires an inquest to be held on the finding of a dead body.

Christ in His sermon on the mount said "Think not hat I am come to destroy the law . . . I am not . . . but to fulfil . . . , and this confirmation still holds today despite those who would have it set aside. St. Paul comments on this "But we know that the law is good if a man use it lawfully the workley this." if a man use it lawfully: knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and for sinners, for the

The Westminster lad expressed the sentiment of a lot of people when he parodied "Hang all the law and the prophets." This clamor for abolition of capital punishment is largely emotional and a distinct departure from God's law. C. M. CADWALLADER.

The noises proclaim the existence of a universe that cannot be seen with the most powerful optical telescope that man can build or even design. Through the study of radio signals from faraway galaxies a clearer conception of the evo-lution and structure of the universe is

The Conservatives were wondering oud, how it was that Frank McMahon, Calgary oilman, eager and anxious to take on the job of building the all-Cana-dian gas pipeline, should suddenly lose his enthusiasm after he had conferred via long distance with the minister of trade and commerce. The Conservatives were convinced that Mr. Howe waved some "wand" to work the magic of per-suading the man who has built the West-coast Transmission pipeline, suddenly to back away from the all-Canadian pipeline

Not Informed

Timely

Prime Minister St. Laurent found himself forced into the position of having o admit to the House that his right hand man had not kept him fully informed on all developments in connection with the all-Canadian pipeline, Mr. St. Laurent more than once admitted that he had no knowledge of a letter to Mr. Howe from Mr. McMahon in which the latter offered an alternative proposition to Trans-Can-ada, to build the pipeline across Canada.

He informed the House that he did not know the nature of the letter to his minister and that he had not seen it, nor had it been placed before the cabinet during its consideration of the all-Canadian eline problem

While the discussion in public of the pipeline has produced much heat it appears from reports sifting out from under the privy council door that discussions in the cabinet were also near the boiling point. Trade and Commerce Min-ister Howe was driving hard to get his colleagues to move fast and provide some temporary form of financial assistance so that Trans-Canada could start on the western line.

His colleagues preferred to make progress slowly and with caution. One minister, Hon. George Prudham of Ed-monton, wanted no part of Trans-Canada or its propositions. Some reports have it that the Alberta minister threatened at one point to resign if the government persisted in giving a financial lift to Trans-Canada whenever it encountered

Vacancy

Reports emanating from Paris last week also carried suggestions that another resignation from the Canadian cabinet was upcoming. External Affairs Minister Pearson was pictured as soon to go to the important international parture would leave a large gap in the cabinet, one that Health Minister Paul Martin would probably be called upon to fill. Mr. Martin successfully substituted for Mr. Pearson last year at the United Nations and it is no secret at Ottawa that he would welcome the portfolio of minister of external affairs. Lord Ismay, the present secretary-general at NATO, has announced his inten-tion to retire next year. If Mr. Pearson was offered and accepted the post, he would be departing after the election in Canada in the fall.

Ambassador Douglas Stuart made his departure from Ottawa a rather noisy and spectacular affair by sounding off at Vancouver in a most undiplomatic speech. He brought down criticisms on his head from the official Opposition in the Com-mons as well as a mild rebuke from External Affairs Minister Pearson

But shortly after Mr. Drew had criticized the American ambassador the two were seen having a friendly luncheon. And Mr. Pearson, after agreeing at the external affairs committee that Mr. Stu-art had said things that an ambassador should not say, presided at a farewell dinner for the genial ambassador. Mr. Pearson in his speech noted that his good friend Mr. Stuart had not petered out but had gone out with a bang

Enjoying Taste of Food

Saunter in the Park

L ONDON—It is a strange thing how people who pay a visit to Canada and the States come back saying how tasteless the food is over there. I was discussing this with a recently returned couple the other day and now here's Philip Harben saying the same

LONDON LETTER

Harben is a big name in this country. He's the TV Chef, shows viewers how to prepare numerous concoctions and cook them trans-Atlantic cooking and the tasteless tag has repond up again cropped up again.

Your natural reaction is to say that the English are fine ones to make such an accusation, what with their "meat and two veg" and every ounce of goodness boiled out of the two veg. But I think there is merit in the criticism of the way North Americans serve their food.

The point that is meant, I think, is that North Americans are so obsessed with the idea of pure food that it becomes so hygeinic that it's dull. For example, anyone accustomed to eating in good London restaurants who suddenly finds himself eating in a good Toronto restaurant has this reaction. * * *

food itself is excellent, the calories well balanced and in its raw state it was probably cellophane-wrapped to assure that hygiene was closely observed. But somehow It all adds up to a somewhat tasteless, un-interesting meal. There is nothing piquant about it. It is pure food, even unsullied by stimulating flavorings and sauces.

You may say that statement is nonsense may not seem tasteless, but to the European palate it does. Harben has brought forward a point in this regard. Being his first visit there, he was struck by the perpetual ice water at meals and the fact that when the waitress asks what beverage you will have she means tea, coffee or milk,

In Canada where a cocktail before a meal is not the usual thing and wines with and liqueurs after are rare, the palate gets the full flavor out of simple food. For those who drink before, during and after meals, as the English and continentals do, the food has to have a bit more excitement to it before the flavor can penetrate the alcoholic barrier.

Harben is probably right there but any observer watching a Canadian or an American at his meal gets the impres-sion that many of them also find their own food tasteless. The North American is the addict of the ketchup bottle. In a restaurant these are to be seen on English restaurants ketchup is avail-but not on every table. There is usually one bottle per restaurant and you can have it if you ask for it, though it is usually re-graded as an insult to the cook. In an English restaurant the flavoring is put into the food by the cook—not added afterwards by the customer from a bottle as in Canada.

On the score of tastelessness, then, it would seem that many ketchup-spraying Americans agree with visitors from Europe. And even our fetish for hygiene doesn't seem to produce the desired results. In Canada and the States food poisoning is common. In "unhygienic England" statistics show that a person would have to eat three meals a day in restaurants for 400,000 years before helping us to live better electrically

From early radio to TV and today's computers, electronics has speeded progress in industry, defence, communications, safety, and home comfort

R EMEMBER those early radios—how hard they were to tune? How they whistled and howled? They were a far cry, both in design and performance, from the streamlined radios of today; yet they helped to change our lives because they were one of the beginnings of electronics. Over the years a great many new uses have been found for electronics. Today, though radio and television are still its most widely known applications, electronics affects almost every phase of our lives.

Electronics benefits us in many ways

Electronics has reduced the size of our world through microwave, flashing words and pictures across the country at the speed of light. Microwave provides the long distance TV hook-ups, an almost unlimited supply of long distance telephone circuits and special communications facilities such as teletype and facsimile.

Two-way radio summons taxicabs, maintains police and fire contacts, aids on construction jobs, provides telephones in cars, and serves us in many other useful ways.

Electronic computers speed research and industrial processes, requiring only minutes to work out problems that would take even highly qualified mathematicians months to solve.

Radar, by showing objects beyond eyesight, guards our frontiers and brings new safety to our shipping lanes and airlines.

And industrial applications such as closed circuit TV, electronic sorters, thickness gauges and quality control speed and improve manufacturing processes.

In all these ways and many more, electronics benefits us all.

This Company was the first in Canada to build TV receivers and transmitters, two-way mobile radio, microwave communication equipment, and electronic tubes, including TV picture-tubes. Today it is developing and producing a growing list of electronic products for defence, industry and home use.

At Canadian General Electric, scientists and engineers are working constantly to increase the number of electronic applicationstheir aim, to help us live better.

It takes thousands of miles of power cable to carry all the electricity Canadians use. And nearly half of the copper used in Canada's power cables comes from Inco. Through all the processing operations, this copper stays in Canada to help provide employment for Canadian men and

1. At Inco, Canadian workmen mine, mill, smelt and refine the ore. About 18,000 people are employed by Inco in Canada.

2. Refined copper is used in Canada for the manufacture of wire and cable. Several thousand more people are employed in this work.

3. The copper wire and cable goes to power companies where it is installed by Canadian workmen.

From Inco copper, Canadian industries manufacture hundreds of useful products-thus helping provide employment for many thousands of men and women in Canada.

Happy Family Ends Mortgage Worries

New Plan Will Ensure Mortgage is Paid Off!

Last summer, a young couple bought a home in a quiet suburban area for $15,000. They paid $5,000 down, with a 20 year mortgage for $10,000. As things stand, they should have no trouble paying it off.

The husband is taking no chances. He has a Confederation Life Mortgage Insurance Plan, with a Total Disability Clause. For $8.31 a month Confederation will pay off his mortgage in case of death. If he becomes disabled, the policy remains in

Yes, for less than 1% of your initial mortgage, based on age 35 or under, you can protect your family from fore-closure at the time of your death.

Features of the Confederation Life Plan

1. This Mortgage Insurance Plan may be purchased on a 15, 20 or 25 year basis. 2. The cost reduces in later years.

3. After the mortgage period you may continue the protection at reduced cost, or receive a cash payment.

Leave us describe a literary evening enjoyed at l' maison Roberts.

It started with a phone call which My Favorite Wife received. Her caller said: "Can you help me? It's right on the tip of my tongue, but I can't seem to remember who wrote the immortal lines 'shall fold their tents like the Arabs, and as silently steal away."

"Why," sail My Favorite Wife, "everyone knows who te those immortal lines.

"But," she added, "the name escapes me at the moment. Hold the line and I will ask the Old Man."

So she asked me, and I replied (of course): "Those are ne of the most familiar immortal lines ever written. Every schoolboy knows who wrote the Arab-tent-silently routine

Fortunately we had as our guest, on this particular evening, a gentleman of some renown as a literary critic. You have often read his book reviews in this newspaper.

He rushed to the rescue, saying: "Those are, indeed, familiar and immortal lines. They were written by a poet well known to all of us. In fact, he is so well known the name is on the tip of my tongue." MFW conveyed this information to the telephoner, and said she would call back as soon as the name was removed

A synthesis of the replies could be written down as: "It's on the tip of my tongue, but, . ."

Then, on the 13th phone call, we hit pay dirt.

The gentleman on the other end of the phone was a literary critic of even more emminence than our guest. In fact, he is so emminent, he writes book reviews for the NEW YORK Times and GETS PAID FOR IT!!

CLEM KADIDDLEHOPPER'S IN THE DOUGH ON C-11 AT 9.30

an end Ford Star Jubilee officials will have to concede that the only really worthwhile shows they have produced this year are those employing the multitudinous talents of the remarkable Noel Coward.

Channel 2: Jack Creley stars in GM Theatre's "The Piper of St, James," about R. B. Angus, Montreal shipping magnate.

First the Englishman joined with Mary Martin in a norable evening of songs popular to both the U.S. and England. Next he teamed up with Claudette Colbert, Lauren Bacall and Mildred Natwick in "Blithe Spirit," which reaped the praise of most critics but a whirlwind from a portion of the public which objected to the play's Lastly, Saturday, Mr. Coward and co produced a fine version of a fine drama, "This Happy

In all probability this will be Mr. Coward's final fling at television for awhile in North America, if so he will be remembered warmly by those who witnessed Saturday night's warm, touching, often humorous "This Happy Breed." The character delineations by Mr. Coward, Edna Best, Patricia Cutts and the balance of the cast were de lightful. If the whole didn't quite measure up to the motion picture or play of the same name it was only because of the time at their disposal. Really it was most worthwhile and enhanced television's reputation as a medium

Ford hierarchy, it is understood, loves Mr. Coward's offerings. But laments the fact that his shows do neell their products. This may be so and we are sorry hear it. Because we hope the Englishman will be invited

Its matchless combination of qualities - lightness, durability, strength, appearance - has made aluminum second only to steel in world markets. New uses - for both civilian and defence purposes - keep increasing the relentless demand. The world demand for aluminum is presently in excess of supply and the immediate prospect is that, like other basic materials, aluminum will be a scarce metal during the months ahead. Despite continuing expansion of producing facilities, as shown in the chart above, the fact is that the demands go up at a rate faster than new production can be pushed to completion at Isle Maligne in Quebec and Kitimat in British Columbia.

ESOUIMALT PROPOSES $33,000 SEWER PLAN

Esquimalt's most ambitious public works program of the year so far, a $33,000 sanitary sewer project in Parklands subdivision, will proceed on municipal initiative if no objection is raised by some 80 property holders.

Residents have until May 31 to petition against the plan, after which work will begin under local improvement authority and paid for by property owners over a 20-year period.

Municipal engineer John Graeme said one third of the estimated cost would be spent on rock blasting.

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both-Relieves Pain-Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of housand to relieve pain. Housands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles" and the sufferers and the

BETWEEN TIMES MONTE ROBERTS

Leave us let our hair grow and have a little culture in this space.

For a change

Leave us describe a literary evening enjoyed at l' maison Roberts.

It started with a phone call which My Favorite Wife received. Her caller said: "Can you help me? It's right on the tip of my tongue, but I can't seem to remember who wrote the immortal lines 'shall fold their tents like the Arabs, and as silently steal away.'"

"Why," sail My Favorite Wife, "everyone knows who

"But," she added, "the name escapes me at the moment. Hold the line and I will ask the Old Man."

So she asked me, and I replied (of course): "Those are some of the most familiar immortal lines ever written. Every schoolboy knows who wrote the Arab-tent-silently routine.

"However," I added, "as I am not a schoolboy, the name escapes me at the moment, although it is on the tip of my

Fortunately we had as our guest, on this particular evening, a gentleman of some renown as a literary critic. You have often read his book reviews in this newspaper.

He rushed to the rescue, saying: "Those are, indeed, familiar and immortal lines. They were written by a poet well known to all of us. In fact, he is so well known the name is on the tip of my tongue."

MFW conveyed this information to the telephoner, and said she would call back as soon as the name was removed from the tips of our tongues.

The three of us—MFW, the literary critic, and I—then went into a huddle and compared tongue tips, but to

The name just wouldn't leave the tips of our tongues. We then started to telephone everyone we knew in the field of education, literature; and culture in general.

We completed 12 phone calls and received excellent co-operation in every instance. A synthesis of the replies could be written down as:

"It's on the tip of my tongue, but, . ." Then, on the 13th phone call, we hit pay dirt. The gentleman on the other end of the 'phone was a literary critic of even more emminence than our guest. In fact, he is so emminent, he writes book reviews for the NEW YORK Times and GETS PAID FOR IT!!

Naturally, when asked who wrote the Arabs folding their tents and silently stealing away, he said: "That's from the Rubaiyat."

And (also naturally) he was cross-examined on this unique bit of information.

Whereupon he demanded time out to consult his bedside copy of Bartlett's Familiar Quotations.

And then supplied the answer which had been on the tips of all our tongues.

You, of course, will know who wrote the familiar, immortal lines. And you won't need to consult a reference

Its matchless combination of qualities - lightness, durability, strength, appearance - has made aluminum second only to steel in world markets. New uses - for both civilian and defence purposes - keep increasing the relentless demand. The world demand for aluminum is presently in excess of supply and the immediate prospect is that, like other basic materials, aluminum will be a scarce metal during the months ahead. Despite continuing expansion of producing facilities, as shown in the chart above, the fact is that the demands go up at a rate faster than new production can be pushed to completion at Isle Maligne in Quebec and Kitimat in British Columbia.

Steady increase in productive capacity has been accompanied by a corresponding increase in employment and payroll. Today in Canada there are 20,500 Alcan employees.

Happy Family Ends Mortgage Worries

New Plan Will Ensure Mortgage is Paid Off!

Last summer, a young couple bought a home in a quiet suburban area for $15,000. They paid $5,000 down, with a 20 year mortgage for $10,000. As things stand, they should have no trouble paying it off.

The husband is taking no chances. He has a Confederation Life Mortgage Insurance Plan, with a Total/Disability Clause. For $8.31 a month Confederation will pay off his mortgage in case of death. If he becomes disabled, the policy remains in force at no cost to him.

Yes, for less than 1% of your initial mortgage, based on age 35 or under, you can project your family from fore-closure at the time of your death.

Features of the Confederation Life Plan

This Mortgage Insurance Plan may be purchased on a 15, 20 or 25 year basis.

2. The cost reduces in later years,

3. After the mortgage period you may continue the protec-tion at reduced cost, or receive a cash payment.

You couldn't find Needles when the first call went up at the derby.

The announcer had to identify his position. He must have been 20 lengths behind.

But then in the stretch, there he was, coming like an express train.

Can he be a triple winner with the Preakness and Belmont to follow in the fight for the triple crown? That's the poser now, for the Preakness is an eighth of a mile shorter than the derby. He may not get up in time if he gets as far back as was in the derby distance of a mile and a quarter Saturday.

And then there was The TV camera followed his every move, before, during and after the race. He was the attraction.

He was supposed to run the first four-minute mile on U.S. soll. He did, but not the first one. Bailey beat him to the tape as Bannister did at Vancouver in the British Empire

Landy heard the thundering feet of Bailey behind him on the far turn; he peeked over his shoulder as he had done when Bannister started cutting down yardage at Empire Stadium; he peeked again when he felt a tap on his posterior from his v countryman.

That was Bailey's signal for Landy to turn on the heat. "Nobody beats Landy," Bailey is reported as saying.

But Landy didn't have the steam to match Bailey and Bailey did beat him in a tremendous finish. It was a terrific performance, matching everything that had occurred two years ago in the Empire Games. And the time was faster too, both men being under a second off the We'd be inclined to go for the latter thought. Champions.

We'd be inclined to go for the latter thought. The memory rankles like Landy, take defeat kindly enough, but the memory rankles them. And beaten, or not, Landy is still a champ in our books. When Bannister beat him at Vancouver, it was thought Landy's star had dimmed. Landy gave credence to this opinion when he announced his retirement. But soon he was back on the track core.

the track; soon he was busting the four-minute barrier in his every race. He did it again at Los Angeles Saturday.

No, they don't come much better than the Aussie school teacher who set, as his personal goal, the four-minute mile, trained in the cool of the night, and came on to run a 3.58 mile at Turku, Finland.

Don't bet he doesn't do better soon; and Bailey, too, for His was a brilliant performance as those who saw it will

And how about a cheer and a tiger for Ron Coulter, too; second best in the Dominion is Ron's bowling history this year. You can't come much closer to the top than that.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP)-Angry mechanics were looking today for someone they claimed tried to "sabotage" a car entered in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race by clogging the fuel line with a cigaret. Mechanics Frank Delroy and Frank Glibben insisted it was no accident that the cigaret was found in the car piloted by Ed Elisian of Oakland, Calif.
